This book is respectfully dedicated to the following persons without whose kind help it would not have been possible: Mrs. Rita C. Boggess, Mrs. Wm. G. Bengel, Mrs. W. R. Stephenson, Mrs. Orlando Worthington, Mrs. C. E. Slavens, Mrs. James Slavens, Mrs. Tessie Slaven, Miss Nelle Lenore Slavens, Bruce Slaven, Paul J. Slavens, the late Gen. Thomas H. Slavens, and many others.

This genealogy of the descendants of John Slavin, of Tyrone County, Ireland, has been compiled over a period of many years by many persons. Very little is known of the descendants of four of his children; William, Elizabeth, Naomi and Daniel. The sources of information has been family Bibles, The Library of Congress, "More Irish Families" by Edward Mac Lysaght, "Irish Family Names" by O'Connor and Kelly, "Irish Pedigrees" by John O'Hart, "History of Highland County" by Morton, "History of Pocohontas County" by Price, "The Stewart Clan" The Encyclopedia Brittanica, records of Augusta County, Virginia, books of Augusta County, Virginia Courts, records of Bath County, Virginia, records of the War Department, records of the Pension Office, lists of Revolutionary Soldiers of Virginia and Cemeterial Records. The descendants of William Slavin, John Slavin and Isaiah Slavens, sons of John of Ireland, are eligible by descent to membership in the D. A. R. and S. A. R.

THE DESCENDANTS OF
FROM COUNTY TYRONE, IRELAND.
ORIGIN OF THE NAME.

The name is from the Irish word, Sliabh, meaning mountain. The earliest spelling of the name was O'Sleibhin. The Hearth Money Rolls (a list of Hearth Tax Payers) for County Armagh, County Donegal, County Tyrone, lists the following spelling of the name O'Slavin, O'Sleavin, O'Sleivan, O'Slevin, O'Slammon, O'Sclevin, Slamon, Slavin, Slevine and Slevin. The first anglicization of the name, Sleiven or Slieven appears in the names of certain mountains in Ireland, Viz Slievanamuck, Slievenanee and Slievensnaught; this last name meaning, Snow Mountain. The O'SLEVIN family is listed as one of the ancient clans and the Slevin family descended from COLLA DE CHRIOCH, one of the very early Irish kings. Many members of the family, in Medieval times, were bards and poets. In the 1890 return, there were about 1,000 members of the family in Ireland, counting all variations of the spelling of the name. Gerard Slevin is the present Chief Herald of Ireland. SLIABH, meaning mountain is the name of a branch of the CENEL EOGHAIN, famous in Medieval times as poets. This surname was established in the 7th century. The Gaelic motto translated means "upper most." GIOLLA COMHGHAILL O'SLEIBHIN, Chief bard of Ulster in the reign of MALACHY, King of Ulster, was one of the leaders in the rebellions against BRIAN BORU, King of Ireland, 959-1014. The Chief Bard of Ulster during the reign of O'Neil, King of Ulster, in the year 1160, was O'Sleibhin. One of the several books that tells of the origin and antiquity of the name is "More Irish Families" by Edward Mac Lysaght, published and printed in the Republic of Ireland by C'Gorman, Ltd., Galway, Ireland. Another book is "Irish Family Names" copyrighted in 1939 by O'Connor and Kelly, Chicago, Ill. This book shows a picture of and describes a Coat of Arms for the family. Another book is "Irish Pedigrees" by John C'Hart, published in 1923, Volumn I. shows a Coat of Arms for the family. The motto "An Uachter" is on both Coats of Arms and means "Foremost." This book traces the family back to Adam through Hanrahan and Adam. Japhet, the oldest son of Noah, had fifteen sons. Parthalon, one of his sons, settled Ireland, 2153 years before Christ. Scotland was settled by the Celts and was given the name of Caledonia by the Romans. Ireland was known then as Scotia. Gaelic is one of the oldest of 3642 languages spoken in the world today. The pioneer immigrant to America spelled his name Slavin. His children changed the spelling to Slaven. Some of his sons, Isaiah, being one of them, added the "s", making the spelling Slavens. Some of the descendants in Virginia and West Virginia of the 5th and 6th generation have changed the spelling back to the original SLAVIN while other members of the same family spell it SLAVEN. The first member of the Irish family to come to America was

who was born in County Tyrone, Ulster, Ireland, in 1723, and came to America in 1740, at the age of 17 years. He was of the Presbyterian faith and by trade, in Ireland, a weaver. The Presbyterian records of Ulster were destroyed by fire in 1922 at Belfast, Ireland. County Tyrone is in two dioceses--ARMAGH and CLOGHER. With many other Scotch and Irish immigrants who came over about the same time, he located at first in Pennsylvania. The descendants of Reuben and Henry say that John Slavin was an Irish gentleman's son and was attending college in Dublin. His father was visiting him on his way home from Liverpool on a business trip. His father was interested in silk weaving and was going to introduce it in Ireland. John Slavin and his father and three or four of his college friends were walking on the quay at noon, one day, when they saw a ship from the colonies. The captain asked the boys if they would like to come aboard and John's father gave his permission. When they went aboard the captain gave orders to sail to the open sea. When the ship arrived in New York, the captain produced forged papers and tried to hold the boys for three more years but John and one friend, named Stewart, escaped from the ship. They were unable to free the other boys. John and his friend obtained work in Philadelphia as weavers and later went on to Virginia. John settled near what is now Philadelphia, Pa. He moved from there to Rockingham County, Va. and settled on Cooks Creek, near Mount Clinton, not far from Staunton in what is now Augusta County. He later moved to what is now Highland County, Va. (elevation 3,350 feet) in 1777 near the head waters of Jackson's River. and settled on land now known as Meadow Dale, and near what is now Monterey, Va.

Some of his relatives from Ireland visited him at Meadow Dale. Highland County was formed in 1847 from Pendleton County and Bath County, and given its name from its mountains. The area around Monterey is known as "Little Switzerland" on account of the beautiful scenery. The name originated in 1930 from a column in the Highland Recorder, a paper published then by Mr. & Mrs. H. B. Wood, at Monterey, Va. There are six valleys at Monterey, all running north--east by south-west. The three largest are Blue Grass, Monterey, and McDowell. The Monterey Mountains were thought to be impassible until 1764, when a French surveyor named John Vanderpool discovered the Vanderpool Gap. He said that there was a range of Mountains to the West that (the Alleghany Mountains) nobody would ever get over. John Dinwiddie and family were the first white settlers to pass through the Vanderpool Gap. John Slavin and family were the third family to pass through the gap. The Indians had moved farther west by then and had made their last raid in Augusta County in 1764. John Slavin's descendants still own and live on land at Meadow Dale which he settled. A part of this land is from an original grant of George III, 1720 and a part from the Common Wealth of Va. 1783. The foundation lines of the first home (log house) can still be traced. The log house was built in the most primitive way, there being few carpenters tools and practically no nails. The clap boards for the roof were split from logs and held in place by logs laid cross wise on them. Later a second log house, slave quarters and other out buildings were erected by his descendants, and still later the brick house now standing and near by the home now known as Meadow Dale. John Slavin married Elizabeth Stuart in Staunton, Va., 1748. She was born in Scotland, 1726 and came to America from Scotland along with other members of the Stuart family coming over at that time and landing in Baltimore, Maryland. Elizabeth Stuart and members of her family left from Scotland after Prince Charles Edward Stuart and the Jacobites were defeated at the battle of Culloden. This battle took place April 16, 1746, at Inverness, also known as Dromossie Moor, site of the pre-historic stone circles. Elizabeth (Betty) Stuart was the daughter of Daniel Stewart. He died 1774 in Sussex County, Delaware.

Children of Daniel Stewart: 1. Elizabeth (Betty) born 1726 in Scotland. Died 1795 in Highland County. She and John Slavin and two of their children are buried at Meadow Dale, settled by John Slavin in 1777. They had ten children. 2. Comfort, born 1737, married Samuel Lingo. 3. Ann (Nancy) married Joseph White. Two children. 4. William, married Priscilla Colburn. Six children: Michael, James, Nancy, William, Peter and Mary. 5. Mary, born 1745, married William Waples. One son, Levi. 6. Sarah, married John Willson in 1775. 7. John, born 1757, never married. 8. Martha (Patty). Daniel Stewart and his family were Presbyterians. The first issue of the "Stewart Clan Magazine" says quote "No matter how the name is spelled, all Stewarts entitled to the name are descended from some line of Scottish Nobility!" The first Stewart in Scotland was Alan, son of Flad. He came from Britany before 1080. The first Stewart to spell their name Stuart was Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots. The ruling family of Great Britain (The House of Windsor) are descendants of the Stewarts. Daniel Stewart is said to be a grandson of Dr. John Stuart and Elizabeth Albertus, married July 11, 1691. He was a wealthy and influential citizen of Long Island, New Jersey, and died in Sussex County, Delaware, in the winter of 1704-05. Their seven children were Samuel, David, John, Elizabeth, William, Hannah and Mary. John Slavin died 1788 and he and his wife, Elizabeth (Betty) Stuart, who died 1795, and daughters, Comfort Higgins and Naomi Galferd, are buried in the family burial ground on land then owned by him about three miles south-west of Meadow Dale on State Highway 84, and about one mile east of the Highway. Meadow Dale is almost two miles west of Vanderpool which is almost four miles south-west of Monterey on U. S. Highway 220. Monterey is at the inter-section of U. S. Highway, routes 220 & 250, which are 8-14 miles to Pendleton County and Pocahontas County, West Virginia, respectively. The graves of John Slavin and Elizabeth (Betty) Stuart Slavin are marked with a granite marker and is on a mountain side in a beautiful location. A granite headstone was placed there as a memorial by Gen. Thomas H. Slavens in 1938. A large ash tree has grown up since his burial and the foot stone is imbedded in its roots. There are four headstones close by and down the mountain, westward about one hundred feet are two other headstones, all red sandstone markers. The inscriptions cannot be read now. John Slavin was a pioneer, founder and patriot. His sons served in the Revolutionary War and his sons and grandsons in the War of 1812. He made bullets for the Revolutionary War, also made lime and charcoal and melted iron ore. His descendants served in the Mexican War, the Indian Wars, the Civil War (both sides) and in all subsequent wars. The John Slavin family Bible brought from Scotland is still in the hands of his descendants. The Bible has been handed down through Stuart-9-J, then to Reuben-2-9-J, then to Stuart Crawford-3-2-9-J, then to Howard Hull-2-3-2-9-J. A daughter of Howard Hull has the Bible now in 1962. It was brought over to this country by Elizabeth (Betty) Stuart or members of her family. The earliest entry in the Bible is 1751. It contains ten names of his children and dates of birth to include: Reuben, born July 10, 1763, "on Sunday morning." The names of some of the later children cannot now be traced, the ink having faded. The time of day of birth was given as above. The Bible is covered with Deer-skin, killed and tanned on the place. The following is the legend in the Bible:

Ohio Infantry. His family received the Congressional Medal of Honor. This was the first time these medals were ever awarded. One of 20 soldiers led by James J. Andrews, a Union spy of Flemingsburg, Ky. and another civilian who by direction of General Mitchel, penetrated nearly 200 miles south in the enemy's territory and captured a railroad train. This train consisted of three freight cars and two passenger coaches. James J. Andrews was a Union spy who had been trading in quinine behind the Confederate lines and the other civilian who also was a Union spy and the 20 Ohio volunteers all in civilian clothes boarded the train at Marietta, Ga. early in the morning of Saturday, April 12, 1862, and when the train stopped for a twenty minute breakfast at Big Shanty, now Kenesaw, Ga. in the Lacy Hotel, James J. Andrews disconnected the two passenger coaches and stole the locomotive and three freight cars. The purpose was to burn the tracks and bridges between Atlanta and Chattanooga, but a heavy rain the night before and a all day rain prevented this. The locomotive of this train called "The General" is in the depot at Chattanooga, Tenn. William Fuller, a Confederate officer, was the conductor in charge of the train. He pursued the train on foot for two miles, then on a hand car, then in a freight engine named "The Texan" running backwards. When "The General" ran out of steam, the raiders took to the woods where they were eventually captured. The story was made into a movie called "The Great Locomotive Chase" and into an exciting book named "Wild Train". James J. Andrews was hanged at Atlanta, Ga., June 7, 1862. Samuel Slavens and the six other soldiers were hanged at Atlanta, Ga., June 18, 1862. His last words were "My wife, my children." He and the other seven are buried in the National Cemetery at Chattanooga, Tenn. around a monument with a replica of "The General" on top. Eight prisoners escaped from the prison and six were exchanged.

March 18-31. Fuller's story.
